CRIME WAVE HALTED WITH ARREST OF TWO YOUTHFUL SUSPECTS HERE SATURDAY

Seized After Three Theft Attempts In Niles Last Friday Evening

Mysterious robberies in Niles during the past few months were said to have been cleared up early Saturday morning with the arrest of two Niles youths.

Elmer Maria and Ceaser Fernandez, both sixteen years of age, were taken into custody by Constable O. W. Ebright and Deputy Sheriff Hugo Radbruch following three new burglary attempts Friday night. Authorities stated that the two suspects had confessed a series of robberies here.

Milton Fournier, Jr., on the street at about 10 o'clock Friday evening, saw the two suspects run from the doorway of the Sprouse-Reitz store, and hide behind a tree on the north side of the street. Fournier noted the identity of the couple, then tried the door of the store, which he found was locked. Fournier notified Arthur Roderick, night watchman, then went home. Roderick phoned to Milton Fournier about 1:30 a. m. the same night and stated that thieves had broken a pane of glass from the front door of the Sprouse-Reitz store. Constable Ebright was called. He immediately got in touch with young Fournier, who told him of the suspects. They were arrested Saturday morning, after a search for them Friday night failed.

Acoording to reports, the two youthful burglars broke a pane of glass in a window at the Southern Pacific station the same night, gained entrance and stole a small sum of money from a drawer. They are also alleged to have broken into the home of Lester Murphy, on Vallejo street.

According to reports, the two that both Maria and Fernandez confessed their guilt of the burglaries Friday night and also all of a number of recent thefts here. They are said to have declared their innocence in connection with the more serious robbery of Scott's shoe store several weeks ago.

The case of the two youths will be handled by the juvenile court, at Oakland. The Maria boy has already appeared before the court on truant charges. It is said that neither he nor Fernandez attended school regularly.

NEW SIGN MARKS START OF NILES CANYON ROUTE

Summer tourists, in quest of Niles Canyon, will no longer find it necessary to ask local pedestrians for directions, after placing of a new sign by the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce last week.

Painted in attractive colors and extremely visible, the sign replaces a faded and cracked one attached to the underpass south of town.

First Snow of Season Is Seen On Mission Peak Saturday

Sweeping storms, which brought the first snow of the season to Mission Peak late last week raised the rainfall total in Washington township to approximately fifteen inches. The Southern Pacific gauge registered 14.97 inches, 1.32 inches of which fell between January 16 and 20.

Falling spasmodically during the night and day, the rain at times reached almost cloudburst proportions, with several flurries of sleet and hail Saturday, driven by wind that leveled signs and tore limbs from threes. Temperatures throughout the township reached a low for the season Saturday, with thermometers reading 26 degrees.

Pea farmers, with their crops springing up on the hillsides, agreed that it was too much of a good thing when the runoff from the down pour did considerable damage to their slopes by cuting well-defined gullies. Farmers declared that their cultivation work is complicated by the numerous rills, some of which are two feet deep in the steeper sections.

All work in the early cauliflower fields was abandoned last week, when the rains rendered the fields impassable, and hurried the decay of cuttings. The February crop, rapidly maturing, will be harvested soon.

Orchardists welcomed the heavy rain, in spite of the fact that it delayed many in the preparations for spraying. It is thought that there will be little irrigation in this district this spring. Alameda creek, flowing steadily for several weeks, had an augmented stream all during the storms. Well levels throughout the district, although slow to rise, had reached a point approximately two feet higher than at the same time last year. A rise of about nine feet was noted in wells east of the Niles-Irvington fault.

Niles Boy Honored On 21st Birthday

Vincent Pine, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Pine, celebrated his twenty-first birthday Saturday at a party attended by friends from Niles, Centerville, Newark, Los Gatos, Santa Cruz, San Francisco and Alviso. Music and dancing afforded entertainment during the evening. Refreshments were served. Maurice Silver, KLX singer, sang, accompanied on the accordian by a Pleasanton youth.

Among numerus valuable gifts received by young Pine, was a new de luxe coupe, presented by his parents.

Pine is a graduate of the Washington Union High school, and widely acquainted in Washington township.

ONE ACQUITTED; TWO GUILTY IN SHOPLIFT TRIAL

Ross Given Six Months; Woman Gets Sentence On March First

Charged wth petty theft, Joe Ross, of Michigan, confessed shop-lifter, was sentenced to six months in the county jail Tuesday afternoon, when he appeared before Judge J. A. Silva at the Niles justice court. James Thompson, of Oakland, tried on the same charges, was acquitted. Mrs. Coloma Thompson, accomplice, was found guilty and sentence delayed until March 1.

The trio was arrested in Niles on Jaunary 12 after an alleged shop-lifting orgy in which a number of local business houses were victimized. They were lodged in the county jail until last Friday when they were brought to Niles for arraignment. Ross pleaded guilty from the outset, while Thompson and his wife declared their innocence.

Goods said to have been taken by Ross were returned to their rightful owners here after being presented as evidence.

It is thought that the arrests terminated a series of similar thefts suffered by Niles merchants during the past few months. County authorities had suggested that a ring of shoplifters were working in California, and sending the goods to a central point for re-sale.

MENDONCA; SOUZA ARRESTED AT SAN JOSE

Both having served time previously, Frank Mendonca and Tony Souza, both of Niles, were arrested Tuesday at San Jose, when they allegedly attempted to sell stolen electric motors to a junk dealer.

In their car, arresting officers said, were three costly motors, all stolen from Santa Clara ranchers. Questioned by Sheriff Lyle, the pair admitted their guilt and gave Lyle information that may lead to other arrests, it is said.

Mendonca has been sentenced here twice to jail terms for petty theft. Souza was sentenced with him to six months on July 10, 1933.

Oficials stated that the men may get long terms as habitual criminals.

OFFICERS OF NILES JUNIOR CHAMBER SEATED BEFORE COUNTY-WIDE ASSEMBLAGE

UNUSUAL PROGRAM TOMORROW NIGHT CLUB BENEFIT

A style of entertainment, as unusual as it is excellent, will be presented at the Memorial building tomorrow night for the benefit of the Country Club of Washington township. Funds derived from the program and dance will go toward defraying expenses of stage construction at the club house at Centerville.

Following a program of exceptional merit, featuring a dramatic reading by Wesley Dexter Gordon; piano selections by Henri Salz; dance numbers by Jewel Smith McKenna and violin and vocal selections by well-known artists, a dance will be held, beginning at 10:30 p. m.

An attractive feature of the unusual evening will be a series of individual formal dinners given by hostesses throughout the township preceeding the program.

Invitations to the affair may be secured from members of the Country Club.

Seventy Attend First Annual Meeting of New Organization

Its charter membership larger than any state junior chamber with the exception of one, the Niles junior group gathered for its first annual meeting Monday night at the Hotel Belvoir, Niles. Delegations from similar organizations throughout the bay district were on hand to witness the the installation of officers, which was the main business of the evening. Seventy were seated for the banquet.

Sam Kerns, president of the Niles group, opened the meeting with a welcome address to the visitors, after which he turned the gavel over to J. J. Amaarl president of the Alameda County Junior Chamber, who presided for the balance of the meeting.

Jack Reith, secretary of the county organization, after responding to Frost's request with several uproarious tales, spoke on the function of the county organization, and made arrangements for meeting during 1935. The Niles group will be hosts twice during the year.

The main speaker of the evening was J. R. Knowland, Jr., vice president of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. Knowland told of the value of the national organization, and enumerated problems to be taken up by it. He urged membership in the national junior chamber, as one of the means of hastening solution of national problems through concerted study and action.

Andrew Jorgensen, president of the Pleasanton Junior Chamber, as installing officer, took charge at the close of Knowland's address, for the seating ceremony. The recently elected Niles officers and directors were asked to stand, and their duties read. The officers are:

Members of the board of directors are J. N. Vivieros, Arthur Roderick, Louis Di Giulio, Rinaldo Cozzi and Ralph A. Richmond.

Following the installation, Amaral returned the gavel to Sam Kerns, who presided at a brief business session. After a number of future events had been announced, including a county meeting at Berkeley next Tuesday; a dance at Pleasanton on Februry 9; the Niles dance on March 2 and the Niles Senior Chamber whist, the meeting was adjourned.

The Country Club program and dance, slated for tomorrow night was announced, and invitations given out to the assemblage.

NEWSPAPER MEN MEET AND TALK

California publishers gathered at Santa Cruz last Friday and Saturday with the avowed purpose of transacting important business, exchanging ideas and renewing acquaintances. To some extend they did all these, but mainly they appeared to have a good time, in the fashion of the day. The affair seemed to be a little different than previous meets, and seriousness and industry apparently were shoved out the window along with dull care. Perhaps it is all a part of the depression or the Rooseveltan philosophy of social conduct.

The "boys" gathered at the Casa Del Rey hotel, and they never left the place, for really it was not necesasry to do so. The prerequisits for an hilarious time were right there; though—as he drinks nothing stronger than water—the writer had difficulty in keeping warm, and while passing part of his time in his room, he shivered miserably. In the lobby of the hotel the chill of the outside was shooed away moderately, and by standing over the radiator one might forget that winter was outside with a vengence. In the hotel auditorium, where the speaking took place, overcoats and mufflers were the order, and the premier orator of the day elected to wear his heavy camelshair while he let fly the wittiest sallies that it has been our good fortune to hear for many years.

Didn't Know the Editors Were in Town

Santa Cruz, apparently, forgot that the newspaper men were abiding in their seaside resort. The hotel management was concerned only in keeping down expenses, and making the craft pay all the traffic would bear, both for room and meals. Liquor flowed freely and the profits must have been satisfactory.

Prof. Keeps Air Warm With His Sallies

Dr. Frederick P. Woellner, of the University of California at Los Angeles, proved to be the one bright spot in the conclave. He spoke on the "Future of the American Newspaper." Fresh from a trip to Europe, including the "terrible" Russia, he gave his listeners a vivid picture of conditions there, and what may be expected in America if the country either goes Fascist or Communistic.

The erudite and polished speaker predicted stirring events for the United States. He felt that we were not destined to stand still, politically, but might take a course sharply either to the "right" or "left." He mimicked Mussolini in a manner that brought shouts of laughter from the audience. Fact of the matter, the pedigogue was so intensely interesting that the editors and their wives forgot for the time being the frigidity of the auditorium atmosphere. He insisted that our country would never stand for a Mussolini nor a Hitler. Men like Will Rogers, he said, would laugh them down and out.

That sounds reasonable but for one thing—dictators do not allow friend nor foe to wisecrack them. Will, with other independent thinkers and writers, would soon find themselves in jail, and very quiet, with not a wisecrack in their system. But, anyway, the Prof. got a rise out of his audience on that score. He predicted, however, that the country is more apt to go Communist than Fascist; but hoped it would do neither, and made an eloquent plea to the editors to stand for progressive democracy to forestall a movement in either of the two opposite directions, which, if embraced, would mean the end of newspapers as we understand them today, and with them free speech and the right of orderly assembly, all cherished heritage from our patriotic forbears.

FARM POULTRY

BETTER PRICES FOR CHICKENS AND EGGS

Outlook Is Encouraging for the Poultryman.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Farmers may expect better prices for their chickens and eggs compared with last fall, mainly on account of the reduced production which it is expected will result from the scarcity and high price of feed, according to the bureau of agricultural economics in its poultry and egg outlook report.

Poultry production this year was the smallest since 1925, reports the bureau. The number of chickens hatched this year was about 10 per cent less than last year, and the number of hens in farm flocks was less than last year. There has been more than normal disposal of hens and pullets in drouth areas of the central states.

Scarcity of feed in many important poultry producing states is forcing poultrymen to dispose of some of their surplus young stock earlier than usual, and a considerable reduction in number of layers carried through the winter is expected.

"The prospective reduction of eggs throughout the fall and winter, and the relatively small production in prospect next spring, should result in a level of farm prices sufficiently high to offset in part a higher price of feed," says the bureau.

The bureau suggests that producers who are able to do so, maintain their laying flocks and carry young chickens over to heavier weights where natural range is available.

Where Slavery Still Exists

There are many parts of the world in which it is reported that a practical state of slavery still exists, including Morocco, Algiers, Abyssinia, some of the interior of China, and much of the interior of Africa. There is a state of servitude known as peonage, which is practical slavery, existing also in some parts of South America.

War Department Studies Use of Tricycle-Motor

Sacramento, Calif. — With the United States War department chiefs giving official attention, a new experiment in the use of a tricycle type of motor vehicle for speedy reconnaissance in battle was being demonstrated as California National Guardsmen moved to the San Luxe Grispo training camp.

The three-wheeled vehicle, made from a motor cycle, with a front driver's seat and two rear seats for officers, was perfected by Lieut. Col. Ralph E. Merritt, Livermore, and Col. O. Sandman, Stockton.

Importance of Sire

It is an old adage that the sire is half the herd. In poultry breeding it may be assumed that the sire is half the breeding flock, since the potent male stamps certain characteristics of his line upon each cockerel or pullet reared from the matings of which he has been one parent, whereas each individual breeding hen has the opportunity of stamping the characteristics of her line upon only the progeny hatched from her own eggs. High capacity egg production is transmitted by both sire and dam.

Hens and Their Diet

The practice of throwing grain on the floor in soiled litter is coming to be looked upon with disdain. Experiment stations and commercial poultry farms have found that the normal laying flock can be fed both grain and mash in hoppers, and that they will consume about the correct proportion of the two. The same type of hopper that holds the dry mash can be used for scratch feed. But where grain is hopper fed, additional hopper space must be provided.

Massachusetts Family Has Unexpected Guest

Newton, Mass.—The Mansfields had unexpected company that arrived at their door by automobile.

Mary F. McGlone, the visitor, who was driving her car for only the second time, with a companion, became confused, stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake, mistook John J. Mansfield's driveway for a street, drove over the front lawn, and ended her escapade by plowing through the front door into the reception hall. A pair of stairs stopped her, or, perhaps, she might have toured the house.

One Dark Night

By BERTHA L. CROSS

©. McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

ANNE stood at the counter peering out into the night. The rain swooshed against the windows and the wind was blowing a gale. She wished her roadster was on the main highway; she should have taken Ned's advice. Her husband wanted to buy a piece of land on the main highway, and she had protested against the extra expense. Besides, her place was on the road that led to the lake. Business had been good. But tonight it was lonesome. Then, too, the police call early in the evening had upset her. "Calling all cars!" always made her anxious. Ned drove one of them.

"Calling all cars. Calling all cars. Blockade all roads leading from Bingham. Look for a green sedan, two men. Big hold-up on the turnpike. Proprietor of garage shot."

As she struggled with them a car zoomed down the road, throwing her into bold relief. It swung into the yard and stopped. She saw it was Ned's car, and was about to call out when a man stepped out. Then another, and still a third.

"Hey, Girl, give me a bite to eat, will you?" the taller one said. He strode up to the door. The second man was more clearly revealed. It was Ned. And to her amazement he gave no sign of knowing her. Instead, he trod closely on the heels of the tall man and was in turn closely followed. Anne trembling with sudden terror followed them. She was no fool. Ned had not wanted to be recognized. She stilled the tumult in her breast and stepped briskly behind the counter. The three men sat on the stools. Ned in the middle. "Hamburger with onions," said the tall man.

Ann forced herself to obey the order as casually as possible.

"I was just getting ready to close up," she said pleasantly. "Coffee?"

"Sure. See you've got a radio."

She turned and caught the glint of his cold gray eyes. "It doesn't work," she replied calmly.

He was trying to find out if she had heard the call! Under cover of the counter, she pulled the plug. The man grunted as he turned the dial and got no response.

If Ned would give her a sign! What could she do? She noticed with a shudder that each of Ned's guards held one hand in his coat pocket. She was certain now that they had abandoned their car and were forcing her husband to help them in a getaway. That meant danger.

Her eyes fell on the oil stove. The oil suddenly gave a little glug-glug. It was almost empty. This was her chance!

"Would you men mind tending store a few minutes?" she said, laughing a little. "I must fill up my bottle before I go home."

"Sure," said the smaller man gruffly. "Always want to please the ladies. Hurry, will you?"

"Maybe I could help?" said the taller one, leering knowingly. "Need anyone to keep you company."

"Oh, thanks! No, I guess I'd make better time alone," dimpled coquettishly. "The tank's downstairs."

Couldn't use her own telephone. Too risky. She would have to run across the road to Mrs. Messer's camp.

"Phone the police," she cried breathlessly throwing open the door. "Tell them the bandits and Ned are at my stand. Hurry!" Like a wraith she was out again, swallowed up by the night.

As she entered the entry, she smoothed back her heavy hair, wiping off the mist. Taking a long breath, she picked up a full bottle and carelessly sauntered in.

"Everything all O. K.?" she said, smiling in the taller man's eyes.

"All here! Guess we'll have another cup o' coffee."

As she stepped forward, her sodden shoes went squash! The tall man glanced up sharply.

"How'd you git your feet wet goin' down cellar?" he asked suspiciously. "Listen, Girl, if you try any funny business."

"What are you talking about!" she retorted. "And what do you mean by funny business?' pretending to be peeved. "Anyway, I don't like your tone."

"But your feet?"

"The cellar's a mud floor; it's soaked if you must know."

That wasn't good enough. She knew it from his eyes, cold and unbelieving continued to bore her. She felt her face blanching. He set down his cup so hard it splashed over onto the counter and reached over to the back. The dangling radio cord gave her away.

"You little liar!" he snarled.

As he lunged towards her, the siren sounded down the road. Ned came to life.

"Get out of here, Anne!" he shouted, striking out with both arms. The men staggered back from the unexpected onset. Anna brought her bottle down sharply on the head of the shorter man. Ned was in a hand-to-hand fight with the taller one.

Purple Heart Decoration

The original Purple Heart decoration was a heart of purple cloth or silk, edged with narrow lace or binding. The revived decoration is of purple enamel, heart-shaped. It bears a relief bust of General Washington in uniform, with his coat of arms above. On the reverse are the words "For Military Merit," with room for the name of the recipient. It is suspended on a purple ribbon edged with white.

Many Uses for Tung Oil

Tung oil is an important drying agent in paints and makes varnishes waterproof. It is used in automobile enamels, in linoleum, synthetic wallboard, waterproof fabrics and in a vast variety of other ways. The oil is pressed from the nuts that grow in clusters on the tree, oils of different characteristics being secured by hot and cold treatments. It is a heavy oil and solidifies to a hard jelly. This is hastened by treatment with iodine solutions. The Chinese use the residue after pressing for caulking compounds and filling the seams in their boats.

ECONOMY LOOMS BIG IN EGG PRODUCTION

Winter Grazing Crops Lower Poultry Upkeep.

By R. S. Dearstyne, North Carolina State College Poultry Department. WNU Service.

Poultrymen who wish to make a profit during the period of low egg production must eliminate all unnecessary feed costs. But the economy should not be carried so far as to further decrease egg production.

Removal of unproductive hens from the flock and liberal use of winter grazing crops afford the best means of reducing feed costs and maintaining a satisfactory rate of egg production.

Non-layers and poor layers add just as much to the flock cost as do the good layers, but add little or nothing to the income derived from egg sales.

Green feeds, which are less expensive than other types of chicken feed, tend to stimulate egg production by providing vital nutrients for the flock.

There are certain crops which will furnish grazing through most of the winter. Italian rye grass and crimson clover, or a mixture of these, have proven satisfactory. Experiments have shown these feeds to be practical from all standpoints.

House for Laying Flock Needs Careful Attention

One of the first steps in an improved system of poultry management is to provide satisfactory quarters for the laying flock. A recent survey in the corn belt area, says the Missouri Farmer, showed that the average poultry house was built in 1912 and that a very small portion, less than one-fifth, possessed the simple features so necessary in a poultry house in order for it to be satisfactory. The average farm was attempting to house 60 per cent more hens than the quarters would accommodate. Less than one-third of the farm poultry houses had adequate ventilation, and about one-sixth were provided with feed hoppers and dropping platforms.

In over half the houses the fronts possessed no windows or other openings. Under such conditions it is no wonder that poultry fails to produce and return the profit one has a right to expect. Usually the extra production when poultry is properly housed pays liberal dividends on the extra investment as well as paying for the house itself.

Warns Poultrymen on Iodine

Because production of eggs with a high iodine content is quite easy, and lately has become somewhat of a fad, California poultrymen have been advised by Dr. H. J. Almquist, research assistant in poultry husbandry, University of California, to proceed cautiously along this line. "The principle guiding much of this work," he said, "seems to be that, if a small amount of iodine in eggs is desirable, a large dose of it would be much better. This is following the same rule which caused the Indian buck to kill himself with cough medicine." Minimum and maximum iodine requirements of laying birds and growing chicks, according to Doctor Almquist, are not known, and until they are, considerable caution in the use of iodine supplements is to be recommended, he said.

Mites Always Busy

There are several kinds of mites. One kind that finds its way into the chicken house almost everywhere is the common red mite. It is not always red in color. It looks red after it has taken a good meal of blood from the hen. When hungry, it is gray in color. Mites work only at night. When they have filled themselves full of blood, they leave the body of the hen and go somewhere into cracks and crevices on the roosts or elsewhere in the chicken house.

In Westminster Abbey

No persons of American birth are interred in Westminster Abbey, but three Americans of distinction have been recognized by the deans of the abbey. James Russell Lowell is commemorated by a stained-glass window in the vestibule of the chapter house. In the poet's corner is a bust of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, placed there by some of his English admirers five years before his death. In 1923 a marble tablet was unveiled in the abbey to commemorate the friendship of Walter Hines Page, American ambassador to the Court of St. James during the World war.

One-House Legislature

Some of the arguments in favor of a one-house legislature are economy, elimination of useless legislative procedure, elimination of the opportunity to evade responsibility for the passage of a given piece of legislation through placing the blame on conference committees which meet in secret, making the individual records of members easier to follow. In general, the establishment of a one-house legislation would be in line with the tendency toward simplification in government.—Exchange.

Value of Mahogany

Mahogany varies much in value according to its color and beauty; single logs have brought several thousands of dollars. Mahogany was introduced in England in 1597 by that pioneer in so many lines, Sir Walter Raleigh. Its bark has a faint aromatic smell and a very bitter taste, and in the countries where the tree grows is often concocted into medicines.

Greatest Port in France

Marseilles is not only the greatest port in France, but through its phenomenal growth during the last century, it has earned the right to be called one of the most important port cities on the Mediterranean. Commercial traffic in 1870 amounted to about four and one-half million tons. During a recent year it passed the twenty-million-ton mark.

U. S. A. Shoulder Straps

The insignia of rank worn on the shoulder loop by commissioned officers of the United States army are described as follows: At the collar end the loops are held in place by the regulation bronze army button bearing the coat of arms of the United States. The general's loops bear four silver stars; for a lieutenant general, three silver stars; major general, two silver stars; brigadier general, one silver star. A silver spread eagle indicates a colonel; a silver oak leaf, a lieutenant colonel; and a gold oak leaf, a major. Two silver bars are worn by a captain, one silver bar by a first lieutenant, and one gold bar by a second lieutenant.

Troy's Site Settled

There was long controversy regarding the site of the famed ancient city of Troy, but it is now generally accepted that the little village of Hissarlik stands where Priam once ruled, Hector died, and whence Aeneas fled. The excavations have uncovered nine different cities, the earliest of some 3000 B. C., and another the Roman Ilium that came to an end about 500 A. D. The Homeric Troy was the sixth of these cities, dating from about 2000 to 1500 B. C.

Gravitation and Atmosphere

Studies of gravitation and the atmosphere show that it is theoretically possible for a shot fired from a gun to leave the surface of the earth and never return. The bullet would have to be projected at a velocity of seven miles a second. But such speed is not inconceivable. The wave of a nitroglycerin explosive travels at the rate of five miles a second.—Collier's Weekly.

Vitality of the Birds Must Have Consideration.

By R. S. Dearstyne, North Carolina State College Poultry Department. WNU Service.

The evolution of the fowl from a jungle bird laying 15 eggs a year to the modern hen laying up to 300 eggs in the same period is a monument to poultry science.

The fowl has been transformed from a partially herbivorous bird to one which will utilize large quantities of animal protein in egg manufacture. The birds' bodies have probably changed in adapting themselves to the new diet.

Unfortunately, however, the tendency of the industry has been to stress increased production without taking sufficient consideration of fowl vitality.

The question of mortality is now a major concern of the industry and much thought and investigation must be spent before the problem can be solved. The problem is complex, as there are so many reasons for birds dying early.

A recent study of the causes of death in 4,440 fowls showed deaths were caused by the following conditions in the percentages listed: Diseases of the digestive tract, 15.9 per cent; intestinal parasites, 11.6 per cent; respiratory diseases, 9 per cent; tumors, 8.4 per cent; germ borne diseases, 7 per cent; diseases of the glandular organs, 6.9 per cent; constitutional diseases, 6.5 per cent; abdominal diseases, 5.4 per cent; protozoan diseases, 5.4 per cent; nervous diseases, 4 per cent; accidental deaths, 3.6 per cent; diseases of the circulatory system, 1.3 per cent, and cutaneous diseases, .5 per cent.

This study brought out the fact that much of the work of reducing mortality will fall upon the individual poultryman to use better methods of flock management and of controlling the spread of disease.

Easy to Induce Turkey Hens to Use Box Nests

Make laying coops for turkey hens with no bottom so the nest will get the moisture from the ground. Make the dimensions 4 by 4 feet and high enough with a one-slope roof, advises a writer in the Indiana Farmer's Guide. The entrance should be 14 by 14 inches. The four sides are made of building lath and nailed on just like a wall to be plastered.

Locate the coops about 100 yards from your residence in a circle some distance apart. The hens watching others, especially on bad days, will learn to use these coops. This being about far enough away so the chicken hens will not disturb the nesting by scratching it out of place. After forming a trashy nest, place a nest egg, as a turkey hen likes the looks of an egg before she sits on the nest even the first time.

The openings in the coop are very important as peep holes, as the turkey hens always keep a sharp lookout when on the nest, and will not go into a dark place to make their nest.

Limber Neck in Chickens

Limber neck among chickens is a condition caused by poisoning, which is characterized by a paralysis of the neck which makes it impossible for the chicken to raise its head from the ground. It is usually associated with putrid or spoiled meat in which poison producing organisms are growing, or of fly maggots which have bred on such material. Treatment for this ailment is rather unsatisfactory, but three or four teaspoonfuls of castor oil, if given during the early stages, is recommended. Limber neck occurs frequently on farms during summer when dead chickens or animals are overlooked by members of the farm family and decomposition sets in. Dead animals and birds should not be buried, unless buried very deep, for maggots work their way to the top of the ground and chickens will eat them and get limber neck.

Invention of Guns

It is not known who first invented guns. They are said to have been used in European warfare in the Fourteenth century. A hand gun of rude construction was used as early as 1446.

Dyed in the Wood

By injecting dyes into growing trees by a secret process, wood is produced veined with red, green, blue, etc. The sap in the tree carries the coloring matter with it.

EVELYN FARIA BRIDE OF TONY LUCAS SATURDAY

The ranks of young married people in Washington township were augmented Saturday, when Miss Evelyn Faria, of Irvington, became the bride of Tony Lucas, of Niles, at a beautiful afternoon ceremony at the St. Joseph's church in Mission San Jose. The Rev. Father John Leal officiated.

Mrs. Lucas is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Faria, well known Irvington couple. Lucas is the son of Mrs. L. K. Lucas, of Niles. Both attended local schools and are well acquainted here. Lucas is in partnership with his brothers in an automobile parts and repair shop.

The February meeting of the Alameda County Firemen's Association may be held at the Memorial building in Niles, if plans laid by Frank Madruga, Centerville assistant fire chief, and newly elected president of the county group go through as scheduled. Madruga stated that inasmuch as the local departments are all of the volunteer variety, expense of the evening would be too great for any one of them. By giving the program as a unit, he declared, all the township departments will share the expense. He hopes to have a large attendance from the larger cities in the east bay.

A meeting of the chiefs of the local departments will be held tonight to arrange for the gathering.

The measure of your education-

WHAT is the measure of your education?

The schooling that you have just completed has given you a splendid mental training and a most valuable general knowledge. But—will your education measure up to the requirements of Business?

In the commercial world employers will judge and pay you according to what you can actually DO. Naturally, they prefer, and pay more to, those who are already business trained.

The measure of a Heald education is known to business men of the West. Employers prefer Heald graduates because for 72 years Heald students have consistently succeeded—due largely to the practical, common sense training given at this fine institution.

Business Positions Available Now

During the past ninety days Heald College of Oakland received 137 calls for office workers. One hundred eighteen were placed. The Heald Employment Department is always at the service of graduates and without charge.

You can begin at Heald's at once. You will find no rigid term courses in the Junior Division, and you can progress as rapidly as you wish, depending upon your own ability.

Special evening classes—twice weekly, Monday and Thursday. Same instructors, same training as day sessions. . . . .

Let Heald College bring YOUR education up to the measure required by business and then help to place you in a desirable position.

The experiments are to find for dairymen a cheap, but still effective, substitute for whole milk, considered too expensive for general use.

The thirty-five calves at the show will be judged by R. J. Werner, of the Golden State Company, who will award ribbons to boys displaying the best animals. Among the beasts displayed will be several veal calves, raised for butchering, and fed solely on whole milk. Did You Ever Stop to Think

THIS INDEFINABLE SOMETHING

¶"here is no substitute for newspaper advertising. The radio advertisement undoubtedly produces some results. Newspaper publishers should not approach the discussion of the subject in any spirit of venom. If radio advertising is effective, if it produces results, it will endure. That is the real test of any service.

¶"But the fact remains that the radio ad cannot do the job alone. With few exceptions the advertiser who uses the radio uses it only supplementally and depends on the newspapers and periodicals to carry his real message. The radio advertisement carries to the listener a certain spirit of resentment, similar to the spirit which the patron of the moving picture feels toward the screen advertisements. The average radio listener-in knows, of course, that radio programs cannot be maintained and furnished him without advertising talk when he is iistening to a favorite program.

¶"The fact that, many newspapers have engaged in the broadcasting business themselves does not alter the situation as regards the desirability of newspaper advertising over other forms. It would be idle to say that newspaper advertising is the only advertising which brings results for, of course, did other forms of advertising not produce results those who spend their money for them would not continue to do so. But it remains a fact that the newspaper is the preferred advertising medium and gives the advertiser more for his money than any other form of publicity. This is not an idle statement nor a wild guess, but it is a fact proven by careful surveys and check-ups made over a long period. There is something about the influence of a newspaper going into a home which carries a prestige which no other form of advertising can possibly carry, the benefit of which the advertiser enjoys. This indefinable 'something' which goes with the newspaper is something that money cannot buy. The newspaper is an institution, an entity. It grows in the affections of its readers; it is eagerly looked for and read by all members of the family. The newspaper goes into the home because the reader invites it there.

¶THE NEWSPAPER WILL CONTINUE TO BE THE CHOICE MEDIUM OF ADVERTISERS BECAUSE IT IS ONE OF ALL OTHERS WHICH HAS PROVED ITSELF TO BE SUPERIOR."

CONSTIPATION Can be Helped!

(Use what Doctors do)

Why do the bowels usually move regularly and thoroughly, long after a physician has given you treatment for constipation?

Because the doctor gives a liquid laxative that can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Ask your doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

TOWNSEND CLUB IS FORMED IN NILES SATURDAY NIGHT

Work for the adoption of the Townsend Old Age plan will be speeded in this district following the formation of a Townsend club. The organization meeting was held at the Niles Grammar school.

Out of a large attendance, twenty-eight people signed the roster as charter members. Meetings will be held weekly on Monday nights at the school.

Officers elected Saturday night were: President, Jack Alberg; secretary, Mrs. Roy Rose, treasurer, Fred Nelson.

The meeting was called and directed by A. Hersey, of Hayward, active in work for the plan in south Alameda county. Two speakers outlined the proposal and stated that the major work to be done immediately was to get signers for the petitions.

It is said that when two-thirds of the voters in thirty-two of the forty-eight states sign the petitions, the measure will automatically go into effect, in spite of legislation to the contrary. Workers for the plan state that nearly two-thirds of the required number have already signed.

"PAINTED VEIL" IS HAILED AS STAR'S GREATEST EFFORT

Joe Penner, Lanny Ross and Jack Oakie are the mainstays of a picture, coming to Hayward tonight, that packed theaters all over the country. "College Rhythm" is the name of it. On the same bill is "Babbitt" with Guy Kibbee.

The great Garbo, idol of screen millions, comes Sunday and Monday in "The Painted Veil." W. C. Fields adds to the bill in "It's a Gift."

Frederick March and Constance Bennett are the principals in "The Affairs of Cellini" coming Tuesday and Wednesday. Tom Brown in "Bachelor of Arts" is the second feature.

"Bright Eyes," with the screen's tiniest star, Shirley Temple, is the attraction for three days beginning Thursday, January 31. Jimmy Dunn has a leading part.

Mrs. Grace Justi was honored guest at a surprise anniversary party given for her by a number of friends Saturday night at the I. O. O. F. hall, Niles. About fifty attended.

"DADS" TO BE FETED BY P.-T.A. CHAPTER AT FEB. MEETING

Mrs. O. W. Ebright, health nurse, was main speaker Tuesday at the first 1935 meeting of the Niles Parent-Teachers' Association, held at the Niles Grammar school.

Mrs. Dolores Wilkins Kent, who was to have addressed the group on character development, was unable to attend because of illness. Members stated that her talk may be given as the feature of the March meeting.

Mrs. Ebright gave one of a series of six talks slated for each Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, at the Niles Grammar school. All are welcome. The talk next week will be on bandages and slings.

The February meeting scheduled for February 14, will be the annual "Dads' Night," when husbands of the members will be guests of honor. The meeting will be purely a social one. A Founders' Day ceremony will be a part of the program.

Mrs. C. M. Myrick, president of the group, named committees to arrange for forthcoming dinners for both the Niles Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Chamber. The former will have luncheon at the school cafeteria at noon on February 11. Dinner for the Junior group will be served on the evening of February 4.

1934 BETTER YEAR SAYS BANK HEAD

Earnings of $11,443,000 for the year 1934 were reported recently by the Bank of America N. T. & S. A and its associated state bank, the Bank of America (California.) For the latter half of the year, earnings amounted t, $6,229,000, or more than a million dollars a month.

Commenting on the year-end statement, A. P. Giannini, chairman of the board and president, said: "The state of California has had an exceptionally good year, and its prosperity is reflected in the report of the Bank of America, with total deposits of $997,696,000 as of December 31.

"The increase in farm value of crops and the gain in business activity in this state is marked by one of the largest increases in individual and corporation savings and commercial deposits ever recorded by any bank. These deposits showed a gain of $136,646,000 during 1934, out of a total deposit incerase of $171,-644,000 for the year.

"It is also indicative of the government's financial program, and of the accumulation of tax money in larger amounts than in recent years, that there was a large increase in public funds on deposit with us. With branches in 255 California cities and towns, Bank of America serves as an active banker for virtually all government agencies and political divisions in the state.

Bank of America declared dividends aggregating $3,851,250 during 1934 and allocated $4,645,000 to reserves or depreciation losses, contingencies, etc. The bank added $2,946,000 to undivided profits during the year, bringing the total of this account to $17,922,000 as of December 31. Total resources amounted to $1,167,754,000 at the year-end.

'COT PIT SHELLS TO BE USED IN MAKING DYNAMITE

New Market Found; 3000 Tons Yearly To Be Bought In Valley

Development of a new market for the shells of apricot pits, used in the past principally for fuel, was revealed recently with the information that the Giant Powder Company had closed a contract in Santa Clara county for approximately 3000 tons a year, to be used in the manufacture of dynamite.

The powder company's action followed a series of experiments, it is reported, to find a substitute for button nuts which have been extensively used for the absorbent medium for nitroglycerine in the manufacture of dynamite. Apricot pit shells were chosen over walnut and almond shells.

The quantity of pits contracted by the powder firm in this valley is almost half the annual total of the whole state production. It is regarded as not unlikely that expansion of the new process to other explosive plants may eventually absorb all the pits available. In the meantime, with half of the pit tonnage going to the powder firm, it is expected that the market value of the remainder will also be greatly increased.

IT MAKES no difference where you sit in the new Ford V-8. Even back seat passengers enjoy "the comfort of a front seat ride."

It took a major engineering development to make this possible—the Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating. But Comfort Zone Riding is only one reason why you'll want a Ford V-8 in 1935. You'll want it for its V-8 power—for the beauty of its streamlined body—for its new roominess—its new easy-pressure brakes and clutch—the safety of its all-steel body and safety glass all around (at no extra cost)!

Types in Cockerels

A great many people when picking out the more desirable cockerels they reserve for breeders make the mistake of taking for first choice those which develop sexually before others of the same age. To those who have not learned by observation that these are apt to be somewhat below average size in their breed, such birds are at this season the most attractive. The cockerels which show the best development at maturity are at this season larger than those just mentioned, and not so well feathered and self-assertive. Until one has learned to recognize the type as that which grows into the best type of adult bird, he is very apt to pass over it, and after he has taken the precocious birds take the largest of those that remain. In a stock of chickens in which the standard weight is the medium, the largest cockerels rarely make desirable breeders. Almost invariably they are coarse and slow to mature.

Lightning Goes on Tour of Pennsylvania House

Mount Pleasant, Pa.—A freak lightning bolt that took on all the appearance of a "chaser" came out of the sky during an electrical storm at Acme to make a tour of the home of Charles Zelinska and depart by a window.

The charge flashed, then ran along the roof to cut a hole through the covering into the chimney. Down the stack it continued to the basement where it leaped out by knocking the lid off the stove and completed the trip by jumping across the floor to the window.

Wind and Frost Aided in Cutting Grand Coulee

Coulee Dam, Wash.—Grand Coulee, the great gap through which the Columbia river now flows, site of the $62,000,000 dam project, was formed by forces other than water. Maj. W. J. Hopkins, former United States army geologist, believes.

Major Hopkins said wind and frost, as well as water, apparently had cut the coulee during a period of thousands of years. Many geologists have held the cut was made by the swift-flowing waters of the river, once much larger than at present.

Neylan had a very pleasing address, and doubtless has a very capable legal mind. But like all hired men, he spoke not his own mind, but the mind over him.

Some time ago a newspaper reporter on the San Francisco Call-Bulletin was fired, allegedly because he was active in organizing, or trying or organize, a newspaper workers' guild, or union. The newsman carried the case up to the labor relations board and to Secretary Perkins and received sympathy—so much sympathy that Hearst was ordeerd to re-hire the reporter at once. This made the billionaire publisher furious through and through, and he refused to abide by the orders of the lady secretary. He managed to get all the big publishers to meet and swear by all that is unholy that neither Hearst nor any of the newspapers would pay the slightest attention to orders from Washington. So the reporter is still out of a job, and dispatches yesterday tell that the President has "taken water," and the immensely rich publishers still rule the roost.

The burden of Hearst's Neylan was that the attempt to force a newspaper to rehire a man it had fired was an assault on the freedom of the press. Just what that has to do with what is published in a paper fails to reach our consciousness; and we should know something about a thing like that.

However, we got quite a wide smile out of this freedom of the press gag, put out by Hearst's stellar legal mind. But how about the freedom of speech, and freedom of assemblage that the Hearst papers are now so busy about suppressing? How about the freedom of the classroom, where new ideas may be taught to pupils by the faculties of our schools and colleges? How about these? Indeed, how about these? No wonder we smiled, but a weary smile, as the Hearst man ranted on and on about the freedom of the press, the while back in the composing room the printers were telling Hearst and Neylan to stay out of their particular dominion. If they didn't like a man back there, it was just too bad. Try to fire him, like Hearst fired the reporter. Yes, try it. But Hearst long ago learned to eat out of the hand of the International Typographical Union, and in doing so says not a word about the infringement on the "freedom of the press!"

No, it is not freedom of the press that concerns Hearst, but freedom to continue in America the greed and power this is vested in multimillionaires and billionaires.

Delivering the Hearst ultimatum to the President, Neylan branched off on roll newsprint, a subject which did not interest a single small newspaper publisher. The whole talk was straight from the Hearst pocketbook.

Copley's Hired Hand Reaches Presidency

The association wound up its affairs by electing an employee of Private Yacht Copley, chain paper publisher, its president. He was not selected from the floor, but by committee. This is the first time that any one, except a boni fide newspaper publisher, has reached the presidency, and bodes, we believe, no good for the organization.

47 Soviet Labor Unions to Be Split in 154 Units

Moscow.—In line with the Soviet union's new policy of decentralization in government and industry the All Union Trade Unions council has decided to split Russia's 47 trade unions into 154.

The purpose of this decision which has the personal support of Josef V. Stalin, secretary general of the Communist party, is to make the unions more efficient and stronger, it was explained, and bring the men into closer contact with union leadership. The divisions will be both geographical and occupational.

For instance, the gigantic All Union organization of coal mines will be split into three unions—one for central Russia, another for the east, and another in the Donetz basin region. The railroad workers' organization will be divided into unions of engineers, trainmen and similar groups. The existing unions are felt to be unwieldy, some having more than 1,000,000 members each.

Confined Hens Lay Well, Experiments Have Shown

That hens kept in confinement, if properly fed, will lay quite as well as those of the same age on the usual limited range and even tend to lay eggs larger in size, has been shown in experiments at the United States Animal Husbandry Experiment farm at Beltsville, Md., covering a five-year period.

These experiments further showed that neither the fertility nor the hatchability of the eggs was affected by the confinement of the birds laying them, important considerations in poultry flock economy. There was also no appreciable difference in mortality in the flocks maintained experimentally under the two systems of management.

Both lots of birds were fed the same rations except that those confined to their laying house had cod-liver oil added to the basic ration and the non-confined birds were allowed to range in grass yards about 70 by 100 feet in size. Every effort was made to furnish the confined birds all the sunshine possible through open windows in the laying house, the sunshine and cod-liver oil precautions preventing possible ill effects from vitamin deficiency. Both lots were furnished electric lights from 5 a. m. until daylight each day from September 15 to April 15 each year.

GRADUATES TODAY FACE NEW ERA SAYS COLLEGE DIRECTOR

High school graduates, in fact, all young men and women who plan on entering a business or profession are faced today by an unusual and a very modern problem. The problem is their own and from them must come the solution.

Gone are the days of the old methods and in their place one finds modern typewriters, dictaphones, calculators, multigraphs, mimeographs, bookkeeping and billing machines, intricate systems of accounting, filing and sales promotional methods.

These new conditions require, therefore, the very best possible business training for the young man or woman who is to enter the field of business. Heald College has geen training young men and young women for more than seventy years and today one may find practically every phase of business training that is required. Specialized courses in secretarial training for young women and young men who desire to enter business through that route, courses in higher accounting, business law, business organization and management, banking, salesmanship, and a thorough training in all of the modern office appliances.

To date, more calls have been received and more positions filled during the past ninety days than in any similar period since 1929, T. B. Bridges, executive director of the college, said recently.

Heald College operates under the individual progress plan, and therefore, students may enter the classes at any time. Both day and evening sessions are held, Bridges declared.

NILES CHAMBER BACKS PLAN FOR NEW STATE PRISON

Need For Additional Institution Revealed In Communication

Entering into a campaign to force legislation for another state penitentiary, the Niles Chamber of Commerce voted Monday to lend its assistance to the San Francisco chamber in work toward the construction of a penal institution in southern California. Need for the new state institution was made more sharp by the recent jail break at San Quintin, a letter from the San Francisco civic group stated.

Following an announcement by Chamber President Jones that the local group will be guests of the Parent-Teachers' Association on February 11, talk turned to the benefit party. Dr. E. C. Grau, chairman, announced all in readiness. About forty fine prizes had been donated by Niles merchants.

A. J. Petsche called attention of the senior group to the new sign recently put up at the south underpass by the new Junior chamber.

Dr. E. C. Grau announced the Country Club musical and dance, to be held here tomorrow night.

Speaker for the day was W. B. Kirk, who told the assemblage of work being done to eradicate plant pests in this district. Kirk stated that tree planting in Washington township this year is extremely heavy. Apricots and cherries being the main trees set out. Some growers have purchased new trees in lots of 500 and more. Kirk told of a shipment of 250,000 rose bushes recently received by the Jackson-Perkins gardens at Irvington.

NILES KNEADS REMAR BREAD TEAM SUNDAY IN DECISIVE WIN

Although they had been touted as one of Oakland's best, and slated to win Sunday, the Remar Bread team found Niles far out of their class when the C. of C.'s went on a hitting rampage to achieve a thirteen to nothing victory. The win was the seventh straight one for the local nine.

"Iron Duke" Dutra, on the mound for Niles for eight innings, held the dough boys to three hits and no runs. Anselmo hurled the last frame, completing the shut-out. Anselmo distinguished himself with the stick with four for five. Bally Pine did likewise.

Raso at short and Ted Dundas at first base played some of the best ball of the seson.

Niles began their scoring in the first frame when L. Pine doubled, then came home on Anselmo's single. In the second inning C. Pine and Wes Raso crossed the plate when Tony Duarte singled. There was no scoring in the third or fourth, but in the fifth Muniz doubled, Dundas, Pine, Anselmo and Dutra all singled to bring in three. A total of eight more runs crossed the rubber for Niles in the sixth, seventh and eighth. The local batters tried batting left handed in the ninth, and there was no more scoring.

On Saturday afternoon the C. of C.'s may meet a little stiffer competition when they tangle with Red Blacow's San Jose State nine at San Jose.
